

This is a transcript of a podcast available at <http://podcasts.ox.ac.uk/>

Title	Introduction to globalisation and the current financial crisis
Description	Ngaire Woods introduces the podcast series on globalisation and its place in the current financial crisis - outlining some of the questions they will be discussing
Presenter(s)	Ngaire Woods, Christina Ward and Jeni Whalen
Recording	http://media.podcasts.ox.ac.uk/univ/geg2/01introduction.mp3
Keywords	G8, IMF, World Bank, Recession, Economics, Governance, Globalisation, Developing nations, financial crisis, GEG, Global Governance, L160, 1
Part of series	Global Economic Governance: Globalisation and the Financial Crisis

N. Woods: I'm Naomi Woods Director of the Global Economic Governance Programme at Oxford University.

J. Weyland: I'm Jenny Weyland I'm a Doctoral student here at Oxford in the Department of Politics and International relations.

C. Ward: I'm Christina Ward and I'm a research assistant in the Global Economic Governance Programme.

N. Woods: The current global economic crisis has people really wondering about globalisation. Is it the opening up of huge new opportunities for people across the world or is it a huge transmission belt for financial crisis and all the bad things in the global economy?

So in this conversation we are going to look at globalisation at look at the current financial crisis and think about what is its impact on different parts of the world and why is it that we might need international institutions to help manage the process of globalisation.

© 2010 University of Oxford, Ngaire Woods, Christina Ward and Jeni Whalen

This transcript is released under the Creative Commons Attribution-Non-Commercial-Share Alike 2.0 UK: England & Wales Licence. It can be reused and redistributed globally provided that it is used in a non-commercial way and the work is attributed to the licensors. If a person creates a new work based on the transcript, the new work must be distributed under the same licence. Before reusing, adapting or redistributing, please read and comply with the full licence available at <http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-sa/2.0/uk/>